Roderick Johnson has, for over a decade, practised almost exclusively as leading counsel for the defence in large, complex and high-profile cases – specialising particularly in cases involving drugs, fraud and money laundering.

Roderick has particular expertise in cases of exceptional complexity, both factual and legal, and has achieved notable success in cases involving issues of disclosure, public interest immunity and allegations of corruption by investigating authorities.

Roderick has been recommended as a Leading Silk in Band 2 by the Legal 500 2017 as “always making a good impression, even in the most difficult clients.”
