Jeremy accepts instructions in London, the South East, Birmingham and the Midlands.

Jeremy joined Goldsmith Chambers in June 2020, having already begun to build a successful mixed practice. Much of his work is in immigration and public law, having represented many clients in both tiers of the Immigration and Asylum Tribunal, at bail hearings and asylum, human rights and EEA appeals. Alongside a thorough and clear-thinking approach to cases, he has a reputation for putting clients at ease and ensuring they give their best evidence. He has a particular expertise in asylum claims with a religious or religiopolitical dimension.

During pupillage, Jeremy gained experience in the areas of actions against the police, inquests and criminal appeals concerning victims of human trafficking. He retains a close interest in these areas, and has successfully represented many clients in complex cases in the Youth Court, Magistrates' Court and Crown Court. He has represented defendants involved in the Extinction Rebellion protests, and has an interest in all areas of free speech, protest law and whistleblowing.

Jeremy has also already gained considerable experience in the Family Court, including a particularly high profile Client, where his calm but focused approach has achieved strong outcomes for clients. He also has experience applying for and contesting orders in cases involving allegations of domestic violence.

Jeremy has a life-long commitment to animal rights, and is a member of ALAW, the UK Centre for Animal Law (<https://www.alaw.org.uk/>).

Alongside studying for the Bar, Jeremy volunteered with Detention Action and the Bar Pro Bono Unit (now 'Advocate'), and undertook a traineeship at the European Court of Human Rights in Strasbourg. He served for two years as a member of the Young Lawyers Committee of the Human Rights Lawyers Association. In his earlier career Jeremy worked as a Church of England priest. His undergraduate and postgraduate degrees are in music and theology, and he has a particular interest in post-holocaust discourse.

Immigration

Notable Cases

GM (Albania) v SSHD [2019]

Asylum granted to a vulnerable male victim of trafficking with mental health conditions, following his opposition to his sister's forced marriage.

TK (Russia) v SSHD [2019]

Asylum granted to a Chechan man wanted by security services for perceived links to anti-government agencies.

FS (Afghanistan) v SSHD [2019]

Asylum granted to a young Afghan man, threatened by his uncle who had joined the Taliban. Due to the Appellant's learning difficulties it was found that he could not reasonably be expected to relocate to Kabul.

FM (Afghanistan) v SSHD [2019]

Asylum granted to young Afghan man, threatened by the Taliban following criticisms made by him during his appearance in a BBC documentary.

Crime

R v AO [2019] Successful challenge to CCTV evidence, leading to acquittal in the Youth Court of a teenage girl accused of assaulting a passenger on a bus.

R v GDC [2019] Following a high profile Crown Court conviction for multiple bomb hoaxes the previous year, successfully argued for variations to the defendant's criminal behaviour order.

Public Law

Jeremy is regularly instructed on high profile and complex challenges, including judicial reviews and public law considerations in a variety of cases. He draws upon expertise in several different areas, including immigration, EU law, and other areas of social welfare law.
